Youth baseball and softball teams have exploded in popularity over the past 10 years. Parents are looking to give their children an advantage over competing softball teams in organized sports activities. Group coaching is simply not enough to give children the proper skills required to play at an above average level in baseball and softball. Private coaches and skilled trainers are fully booked by eager parents looking for one-on-one training for their child. Baseball and softball leagues are increasing in popularity and advanced skills training is an absolute requirement for participants in these activities.
